Hi! I am Mrs Wilcox and I am fortunate enough to be the new Geography lead. I have a passion for exploring the world through geographical experiences and believe that studying Geography is important for children, regardless of their age. Geography helps children to make sense of the world around them and piques their curiosity in places and people - engaging pupils in their world and spurring them into action. It is important for children to understand why places are changing and how they are interconnected. Geography deals with the 'here and 'now' of real life and as such, is a vital 'living' subject that contributes to and enhances the wider curriculum. At Brookfield, we strive to offer children hands on experience of Geography and Geographical skills by planning field trips and walks in the local area. There are many ways in which you can enhance your child's Geographical experiences such as:

- Local walks
- Map work – children love to follow a map especially if there is an end goal!
 - Exploring different parts of the country and recognising the features
 - A diary entry of places visited during the school holidays
 - Testing children's knowledge of flags from different countries
- Using the internet to research – here are some useful website: National Geography for kids Kids world travel guide Ducksters BBC Bitesize (KS1) BBC Bitesize (KS2) Top Marks Teach it Primary

I would love to share any Geographical home learning that the children have participated in!
